Sell Bankruptcy Claim

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio has sold its bankruptcy claims against King Resources Co. for $8.4 million, recovering a portion of the funds it lost in the 1970 Crofters loan scandal, Atty. Gen. William J. Brown announced Friday.

"This is, indeed, a significant recovery for Ohio," Brown said, "but it is far from enough. Today's action allows us to recover much of Ohio's initial investment, but it does not allow for the interest the funds would have gained for the state during the past six years."

"Our other court actions will continue in an effort to recover as much as possible for Ohio," he added.

Ohio sold its bankruptcy claims to Texas International, an Oklahoma

City oil and gas exploration company, during a meeting Friday in Chicago. The company will acquire Ohio's right to receive stock in the event King Resources is successfully reorganized. The firm has been in bankruptcy since 1971.

Ohio's claim against King Resources, a Denver, Colo., oil drilling firm, resulted from purchase of two investment notes by former Ohio Treasurer John Herbert. Ohio invested about $8 million for a two-year period with the understanding it would receive $8 million plus interest from King Resources. The loan exceeded the state's $50 million limit on investment in commercial paper, or short-term notes.

The purchases of these investment notes were negotiated by the Columbus finding firm of Crofters, Inc. Within 16 months after the purchases, King Resources entered bankruptcy.

Brown said he also is continuing actions to recover damages from former officers and directors of King Resources, Arthur Andersen and Co. and National Credit Office, a division of Dunn and Bradstreet.

Arthur Andersen and Co. prepared the financial statement for King Resources and NCO improperly provided a prime rating for King notes, Brown said.

The attorney general is continuing action against Herbert, his former deputy, Robert Gardner, and their bonding companies.

The principal amount of bonds is $1.6 million.

In December 1976, the Ohio Supreme Court held that Herbert and Gardner were liable for any damages suffered by the state as result of illegal investments in King Resources. That matter is now before the Franklin County Common Pleas Court to determine the amount of damages owed by each of the defendants.

The King Resources loan and another for $4 million to Four Seasons Nursing Homes, which also went bankrupt, triggered a scandal which had severe political repercussions for Republicans and was credited with contributing to former Gov. John J. Gilligan's election in 1970 and Brown's victory over Herbert for attorney general.

Space Shuttle Test Resounding Success

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — In a five-and-a-half minute soaring glide over the California desert, a craft called Enterprise ushered America into a new space era — one in which man's space ventures not only will fascinate him but will work for him.

With astronauts Fred Haise and

Gordon Fullerton at the controls, the space shuttle popped off the back of its Boeing 747 mother ship on Friday, burst through high-hanging clouds and roared safely to rest in a storm of dust. It was the first time the space bus for the 1980s had ever flown on its own.

For many of the thousands of persons who came to this desert base northeast of Los Angeles to watch the chunky craft test its wings, the Enterprise seemed to represent science fiction come true. The craft, named after the ship in the popular television show "Star Trek," can perform its space chores and return to Earth for reuse.

The shuttle, which will eventually carry scientists on flights into Earth orbit, was lugged to a four-mile altitude by the 747 before it was released for its test flight and landing.

When the shuttles begin making flights to outer space in 1979, they will blast off from Earth like rockets, using their own engines and supplementary engines that will be shed after launch and salvaged for later use.

When Haise, 43, and Fullerton, 40, eased the shuttle down on a dry lake bed runway, cheers erupted and everywhere there was talk of the space shuttle's promise.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. spoke of the shuttle as a means to use outer space to aid an Earth running out of resources.

Brown, who has the reputation of a fiscal conservative and whose state is benefiting from having Rockwell International Corporation of California as the main contractor for the shuttle, said the $2 billion spent to put the Enterprise aloft was well worth it.

Perhaps Carl Sagan, Cornell University astronomer and NASA's most persuasive salesman, put the shuttle in clearest perspective: "The shuttle is putting the human presence in orbit around the Earth," Sagan said. "And utilizing space for human needs."

The shuttle is the first spaceship that can land like a plane and make regular trips in and out of space. It will be able to repair satellites, hasten the development of a system that will shoot energy from space to Earth and will aid in exploring other planets in the solar system.

For Fred Haise, there was a more personal meaning in the success of the Enterprise. Haise was aboard Apollo 13 in 1970 when the spacecraft had to turn back from the moon after an explosion in mid-voyage. Three years later he escaped death when a plane he was flying crashed and burned short of a runway in Texas.

"It is for me, a long time waiting," Haise said. "My last flight was Apollo 13, which was, of course, a great mission. It was great to get back, but it left me with a taste that something didn't go right."

"I certainly didn't feel that way with this one. On this one I'm very happy. Everything went superslick."

SUCCESS STORY — Beth Hovermale, 17, won first place in the Hunt Seat Equitation contest at the Pickaway County Fair with Orbit, a 17-year-old former race horse who she competed with for the first time. Beth, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Hovermale, 533 Sycamore Drive, said Orbit raced the Kentucky thoroughbred circuit as a youngster and was banished to a riding stable about 14 years ago upon his retirement. Orbit was owned by Beth's riding instructor Peggy Twoney of Pataskala, who gave the horse to her several years ago as a gift. For the fair, Beth opted to allow her sister, Amy, 12, to ride her less-spirited Anglo-Arabian Misty Echo while she went through the paces in a winning way with Orbit.

Newspaper Rejects 'Son Of Sam' Rights

NEW YORK (AP) — As psychiatrists began their examination of David R. Berkowitz, the softly smiling postal worker accused in the "Son of Sam" slayings, one of his attorneys reportedly offered to sell The New York Daily News six hours of recorded conversation with Berkowitz.

The attorney, Philip Peltz, 43, denied the newspaper's allegations.

The News said in today's edition that Peltz offered — through a representative — to sell it the "North American Sunday rights" to the taped conversations for $50,000. The newspaper said it declined the offer.

Berkowitz, 24, was arrested Wednesday night. He has been charged with the death of Stacey Moskowitz and the wounding of her date, the last of the shootings attributed to the killer who stalked quiet residential streets with a .44-caliber revolver. Police say Son of Sam killed six persons and wounded seven others in a shooting spree that covered slightly more than a year.

Peltz said he had been hired by Berkowitz, but Berkowitz' father, Nathan, has hired another attorney to represent his son. It was not known exactly how Peltz became involved in the case.

Peltz confirmed published reports that he had served three months in federal prison in 1971 after being convicted on five counts of an indictment charging him with bribery, promoting a stock fraud scheme and soliciting prostitutes for an employee of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Peltz on Friday sought a gag order barring state and city officials, police or press from disclosing further information about the suspect's statements. The motion was denied by Supreme Court Justice Leonard E. Yoswein. Another judge, after learning of the reported offer to sell the tapes, issued an order prohibiting Peltz and Leon Stern, the other attorney in the case, from releasing any confidential information obtained from Berkowitz.

Saxbe Garage Sale Rousing Success

MECHANICSBURG, Ohio (AP) — William Saxbe, world traveler, is trying to sell all the odds and ends he has collected during his tours of the globe as attorney general, senator and ambassador.

So, like other Americans, he is holding a garage sale.

But the large collection of hats he's offering for pennies and room-size Persian rug he's selling for $1,500 attracted so many bargain-hunters and history buffs that he and his wife Dolly opened the gates early Friday when the sale began.

"Well, Dolly, we might as well let them in already," Saxbe told his wife 45 minutes before he had planned to start his sale. Two hundred persons had gathered at his farmhouse entrance to view his sale, which continues today.

"They've got to go," Mrs. Saxbe said earlier of the accumulated junk. "We've been buying this stuff for years and decided we just had to do something with it. It takes up so much space."

The Saxbes decided to stage the sale several weeks ago. "We planned for it well in advance when phone calls and letters asking about the sale made it evident how many we could expect," said Saxbe, former state attorney general, state legislator, U.S. senator, U.S. attorney general and ambassador to India.

In addition to out of state shoppers, the Saxbes had a thick file of letters from persons who had read of the sale and wrote to ask to buy specific items, or any item at all. Many enclosed checks.

Saxbe's son rescued his Marine pilot's helmet before the crowd swarmed through the gates. "This is U.S. government property and they might not be too happy if it was sold," said Charles Rockwell Saxbe.

The sale was well organized, with friends and neighbors posted at each table, items marked with the expected price and a description of the significance of the object on specially printed, attached cards.

Lima Sludge Contaminated With PCB

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — City officials have suspended a program to supply sludge from the city waste water treatment plant to area farmers because of the discovery of the chemical compound PCB, considered dangerous to humans.

The program was closed Aug. 1 when the presence of PCB was suspected.

The finding was confirmed by city Utilities Director Galen Gault after a sample analysis by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency. Source of the PCB was not known.

Until the finding, Lima distributed sludge to about 50 area farmers for use as a fertilizer additive.

The compound was found in an old sludge dumping lagoon that was to be replaced by a $3.5 million sludge dewatering facility.

Gault said PCB — properly Polychlorinated Bi-phenyl — can affect the human nervous system if it is taken in large quantities over a long period.

The compound was used as a cooling agent for electric transformers but its manufacture is banned in this country.

Gault said the one remaining plant at Sauget, Ill., makes closed cooling systems for transformers but will shut down in a year.

Grand Parade Featured At Homecoming

The 46th Annual Commercial Point Homecoming opened Thursday evening. Events that night included the selection of Little Miss and Mister Homecoming.

During the weekend of activities, Miss Commercial Point was chosen Friday evening. Also on Friday there was an antique carriage display and square dancing to Roger Miller with caller Toddie Reed.

The Grand Parade begins at 11 a.m. today. It features the new queen of the event and her court as well as contests in several categories. There will be entries in the decorated tricycles and bicycles, pets, neatest horse and antique cars.

Adding to the afternoon's entertainment will be the area fire departments performing in a water battle. This event will start at 2:30 p.m. Beginning at 12:30 p.m. will be the Prefectionettes Baton Corps and the Western Horse Show.

Flower show and other exhibits will be open for display all day in the school auditorium. This evening's activities feature dancing to Roger Miller and the Countrymen with Toddie Reed, caller.

Weather

Rain-producing fronts will blanket Central Ohio in rain showers until Sunday, when a high pressure system is expected to produce cool and dry weather over the state for several days. Partly cloudy today, tonight, and Sunday with showers and thunderstorms likely until late Sunday afternoon. Temperatures will be near 80 and in the middle 60s with a 50 per cent chance of rain today and a 70 per cent chance tonight and Sunday. Temperature extremes Friday were 70 and 68.

NEW DONOR CARDS — Maggie Brandt of the Central Ohio Regional Red Cross Blood Center explains new procedures in the donation of blood to Etha Mae Wolford of the Pickaway County Chapter. Beginning Sept. 1, plastic donor cards will be issued. The cards more durable, readable, and more quickly utilizable as an identification tool, will speed blood donor registration. Ms.

Brandt, who is the blood donor coordinator in six counties, also assisted local workers in a telephone campaign to remind residents and businesses that the Bloodmobile will visit Circleville Monday, Aug. 22, instead of Tuesday, Aug. 23. The Bloodmobile will be in Ashville Friday, Aug. 19. Goal for the Circleville visit is 150 units.

Carter Pushes Canal Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is mounting a four-pronged drive to win Senate ratification of his personally endorsed Panama Canal pact, which faces stiff opposition from foreign-policy conservatives.

Carter is trying to persuade senators personally that the new agreement is a good one and should be approved.

He is attempting to pressure them through the people.

He is discussing the agreement with top Republicans such as former President Gerald R. Ford and former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. Carter's spokesman says "it is safe to assume the President would like to have (their) support."

Finally, Carter is trying to show that the United States would win friends in Latin America by putting the pact into effect.

More than a new treaty with Panama is riding on this early test of Carter's foreign-policy strength in Congress. Failure to defeat the conservatives could portend trouble for other initiatives, such as any new arms control treaty he signs with the Soviet Union.

The new canal agreement, reached with the Panamanian government after 13 years of negotiating, relinquishes U.S. control of the waterway to Panama by the year 2000. It grants Panama full control of the Canal Zone within three years after the treaty is ratified.

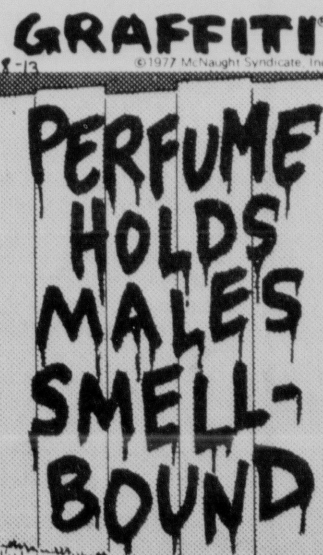

Other terms provide a big increase in U.S. payments for use of the canal and give Panama hundreds of millions of dollars in aid for the life of the pact.

In formally endorsing the pact Friday, the President singled out two arguments for Senate approval. Carter gave his endorsement with his top canal negotiators, Ambassadors Sol Linowitz and Ellsworth Bunker, at his side.

First, approving the agreement would have a positive impact in this country, Carter said, because national security is foremost in the minds of the people. He said the agreement assures that security.

"Under the canal treaty that will now be prepared," Carter declared, "we will have operating control and the right to protect and defend the Panama Canal with our military forces until the end of this century."

Newspaper Rejects 'Son Of Sam' Rights

NEW YORK (AP) — As psychiatrists began their examination of David R. Berkowitz, the softly smiling postal worker accused in the "Son of Sam" slayings, one of his attorneys reportedly offered to sell The New York Daily News six hours of recorded conversation with Berkowitz.

The attorney, Philip Peltz, 43, denied the newspaper's allegations.

ACLU And Klan May File Suit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union and the Ku Klux Klan plan to file suit next week if the state refuses to permit the KKK to hold a Labor Day rally on Statehouse property.

The permit was denied by the Department of Administrative Services on the grounds that it might cause a disturbance.

Benson Wolman, executive director of the Ohio ACLU said he doesn't think representing the Klan will hurt the union's reputation because he said all groups should recognize the issue of freedom to organize.

Only July 4, a Klan rally at the Statehouse turned into a clash between busing and antibusing supporters.

Sod Webworms, Chinch Bugs Begin Annual Lawn Attack

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Sod webworms are about 3/4 inch long and light brown. Their bodies are covered with fine hairs.

Sod webworms are the larvae of lawn moths. The adults are small, whitish or gray moths (or millers). They fold their wings closely about their bodies when at rest. They hide in the shrubbery or other sheltered spots during the day. In the early evening they fly over the grass, and the females scatter eggs over the lawns.

The worms work only at night and they live in protecting silken webs or nets that they form about their bodies. As soon as they are hatched, they start feeding on the grass leaves. When they grow larger they build burrows or tunnels close to the surface of the soil; they reinforce the tunnels with bits of dirt and pieces of grass, line them with silk, and live in them. They cut off blades of grass and eat them. Some species feed on the grass crowns at ground level and on the roots. As partly grown larvae, they overwinter in their silken webs.

People Helping People

By SCOTT KLEON

We are living in a constantly changing world. There are many forces and problems that face youth today that were not as big a problem in earlier times. Some of these problems are: alcohol and drugs, increasing rates of antisocial behavior and delinquency, and more leisure time options.

Studies have shown that in most cases "problem youth" possess almost no leisure or recreational skills or special interests.

4-H provides an opportunity for youth to make wise use of their leisure time, and develop skills in areas that are of interest to them. There is a wide variety of projects now available to young people today. Besides the traditional Agriculture and Home Economics projects, we now offer projects in areas such as Family Life, Engineering, Personal Development, Communication, Bicycle, Conservation, Junior Leadership and many more to help fit the needs and interests of people today.

Sod webworms prefer new lawns. They attack bentgrass, bluegrass, fescue and other grasses. Irregular brown spots are the first signs of damage. If the infestation is heavy, large areas of grass may be damaged severely or destroyed in only a few days.

Several species infest lawns. The tropical sod webworm is the most important one in Florida. A burrowing sod webworm sometimes infests lawn grasses from Kansas south to Louisiana and east to Maryland. The dirty white larvae live in silk-lined tubes about 3/8 inch in diameter that extend 2 to 3 inches into the soil.

You can find the worms by breaking apart some of the drying sod. If there are 3 or 4 of them within a 6-inch-square section, apply an insecticide.

Chinch bug damage is caused by the young bugs, or nymphs. Yellowish spots appear in the infested lawn; they turn rapidly into brown, dead areas.

Nymphs hatch from eggs laid by the female adults. At first a nymph is about half the size of a pinhead; it is bright red and has a white band across the back. As it grows, it sheds its skin four times. The full-grown nymph is black and has a white spot on the back between the wing pads.

The adults are about 1-6 inch long. They are black and have white markings.

Chinch bugs don't make a lot of noise or even come out where you can see them, but they are silently working away now in your lawn doing damage that won't show up from your view until later.

The reason you could be surprised about September is the dry weather we are having now, says Richard L. Miller, Extension Entomologist at The Ohio State University. During dry weather, everyone's lawns turn brown — unless watered, so dry patches could be mistaken for dry weather rather than chinch bugs.

Then, this fall when a lot of lawns — properly treated — turn green with plenty of moisture and your lawn doesn't, what do you suppose the reason will be? You can just about bet the trouble will be chinch bug damage, Miller says.

The second generation of chinch bugs is present now and will be active (doing damage) until October. These insects are down in or below the thatch area — that area of brown, fibrous material between the soil surface and the green blades of the grass. To see the bugs or any stage of their growth, get down on your hands and knees and part the grass. The exposed strip between your hands may be crawling with all stages of chinch bugs. Chinch bugs are sensitive to bright light and when you part the grass to let the light in, they become excited and scamper back into the grass. It is the movement that tells you chinch bugs are present.

To get an insecticide down where the chinch bugs are requires 20 or more gallons of water per 1,000 square feet of lawn area. The best time to apply treatment is just after a 1 or 2 inch rain followed by lightly watering the insecticide in 10 to 20 gallons of water into the soil. During real dry weather, the thatch area is difficult to penetrate with small amounts of water. Continuous watering will soften the thatch and allow water to get through. Then you can get the insecticide through to the hiding area of the chinch bugs.

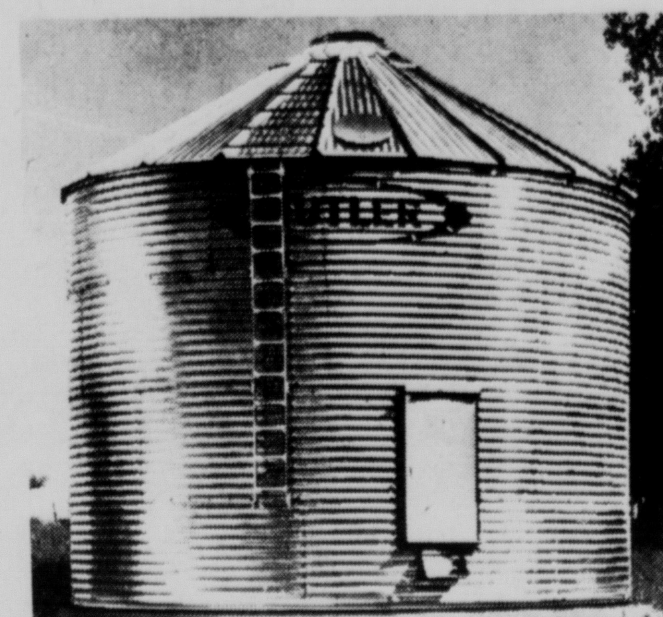

Materials to use are Sevin, diazinon, Dursban, Spectracide, Ethion, Trithion, or Aspon. Check label for amount per 1,000 square feet and apply in 20 gallons of water per 1,000 square feet.

These materials will also kill sod webworms. Other sod webworms killers are Dylox and Baygon.

ACLU And Klan May File Suit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union and the Ku Klux Klan plan to file suit next week if the state refuses to permit the KKK to hold a Labor Day rally on Statehouse property.
The permit was denied by the Department of Administrative Services on the grounds that it might cause a disturbance.
Benson Wolman, executive director of the Ohio ACLU said he doesn't think representing the Klan will hurt the union's reputation because he said all groups should recognize the issue of freedom to organize.
Only July 4, a Klan rally at the Statehouse turned into a clash between busing and antibusing supporters.

Sod Webworms, Chinch Bugs Begin Annual Lawn Attack

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,

Sod webworms are about 3/4 inch long and light brown. Their bodies are covered with fine hairs.

Sod webworms are the larvae of lawn moths. The adults are small, whitish or gray moths (or millers). They fold their wings closely about their bodies when at rest. They hide in the shrubbery or other sheltered spots during the day. In the early evening they fly over the grass, and the females scatter eggs over the lawns.

The worms work only at night and they live in protecting silken webs or nets that they form about their bodies. As soon as they are hatched, they start feeding on the grass leaves. When they grow larger they build burrows or tunnels close to the surface of the soil; they reinforce the tunnels with bits of dirt and pieces of grass, line them with silk, and live in them. They cut off blades of grass and eat them. Some species feed on the grass crowns at ground level and on the roots. As partly grown larvae, they overwinter in their silken webs.

Sod webworms prefer new lawns. They attack bentgrass, bluegrass, fescue and other grasses. Irregular brown spots are the first signs of damage. If the infestation is heavy, large areas of grass may be damaged severely or destroyed in only a few days.

We are living in a constantly changing world. There are many forces and problems that face youth today that were not as big a problem in earlier times. Some of these problems are: alcohol and drugs, increasing rates of antisocial behavior and delinquency, and more leisure time options.

News For Homemakers

By BEVERLY SEYMOUR BECHTEL
County Extension Agent,
Home Economics

One of the pleasures of your own garden is the tasty flavor of fresh vegetables. Some of that goodness can be preserved by freezing such vegetables as brussels sprouts, snap beans, peppers and squash.

Now that surplus vegetables are on hand, Robert Joseph, Ohio State University Extension Food Specialist, says freeze them successfully.

To freeze brussels sprouts, Joseph says select firm, compact, medium-sized sprouts that are bright green. Remove sprouts from the main stem and handle individually. Wash thoroughly. If there is any evidence of insect life or damage, let stand in salted water for 1/2 hour. If sprouts are not uniform in size, sort into 2 or 3 sizes. Scald and cool.

Scalding Time: Scald small sprouts with steam for 3 minutes and large ones for 5 minutes. Or scald small ones in boiling water 3 minutes and 4 1/2 minutes for large ones. Cool quickly in ice water and drain.

Package in moisture-vapor proof containers. Seal, label, and freeze packages immediately. Ten pounds of sprouts will make about 10 12-ounce packages.

When freezing green or wax beans, select only tender, crisp, stringless pods with small to medium-sized seeds (seeds less than 1/2 inch long), says Joseph. Discard bruised, discolored or insect and disease-damaged pods. Process snap beans promptly, as they wilt within a few hours after harvest and may spoil and lose their quality.

Wash thoroughly in cold water, snip off ends, and sort into two or three sizes. The smallest size may be packed as whole beans. The next size may be sliced lengthwise (French style), and the largest size snapped or cut into 1-inch lengths.

Scald in water at 170 degrees F. - 1 1/2 minutes for young, tender French style; 2 1/2 minutes for young tender cut or whole beans; and 3 1/2 minutes for more mature cut or whole beans. Cool at once in ice water, then drain.

Package in moisture-vapor proof containers; seal and label the packages and freeze immediately. A bushel of beans will make about 35 12-ounce packages.

Green peppers frozen without heating are best for use in uncooked foods. Heated peppers are easier to pack and good for use in cooking. Select firm, crisp, thick, walled peppers, Joseph says.

Wash, cut out stems, cut in half, and remove seeds. If desired, cut into 1/2 inch strips or rings. Heat in boiling water, if desired: 3 minutes for halves or 2 minutes for slices. Cool promptly in cold water and drain.

If peppers have not been heated, pack in containers, leaving no head space. Seal and freeze. If heated, leave 1/2 inch head space.

To freeze hot peppers, wash and stem. Then pack into small containers, leaving no head space. Seal and freeze.

Select young summer squash with small seeds and tender rind. Wash, cut in 1/2-inch slices and heat in boiling water for 3 minutes. Cool squash promptly in cold water and drain.

Pack into containers, leaving 1/2-inch head space. Seal and freeze.

Select only fully-matured, richly-colored and highly-flavored winter squash or pumpkins that have a smooth consistency when cooked. Wash and cut into 3 to 4-inch pieces. Remove seeds and fiber.

Scald by cooking in steam or bake in oven until tender. Scoop squash or pumpkin from rind or put through a food press, ricer or puree strainer. Cool by placing in pan and floating pan in ice water.

Pack in moisture-proof containers, seal and label. If desired, those spices that would be used when making pies may be added to the puree before it is packaged. Freeze immediately. Ten pounds of pumpkin or squash will make five 16-ounce packages.

Williamsport News

It seems incredible that school will begin in just a short time. As hot and humid as the summer has been it still has gone quickly by and here we are buying school supplies and clothing. It only takes the blink of an eye, or so it seems anymore, and another of the four seasons is with us. As I approach the big five-O birth date (Sept. 4) my whole being becomes more traumatic and discombobulated.

Speaking of time passing swiftly, why it seems only last week that Terry Dountz was among the young people populating our household and now here he is one of the law enforcers for our village. We wish him well and feel certain he will sincerely try to be a fair, firm and conscientious lawman.

Class Reunion

Members of the 1941 Williamsport High School graduating class are reminded of their annual reunion to be held this Sunday at the home of Betty Barthelmas Hanawalt on the Five Points Pike. This will be a change of scenery for the group since in prior years as they have chosen a spot at Deercreek Dam park. Secretary Mary Alice Greenwood mailed the invitations some time ago but in the event a class member did not receive his or hers this notice will serve as a further invitation to be sure and join classmates for the covered dish 5:30 p.m. dinner. Families are welcome, of course.

Some of our vacationing friends and neighbors have returned to the fold. Coming home Saturday were Earl and Maxine Lanman. They went "that-a-way" west again and have now covered all the western sector of the United States (except Hawaii and Alaska). Time was spent with Mabel Lanman and her grandkiddies at Electric City, Wash. They toured Coulee Dam while there and also Mt. Rainier. They traveled down the coast to Oregon, over to Idaho and to Utah, on to Colorado where they courageously drove the nineteen miles up Pike's Peak and have vowed "Never Again." Another highlight was coming through Monarch Crest in the Continental Divide with an eleven thousand plus elevation. Dodge City in Kansas proved to be interesting for the travelers, too. All together their trip took them into fourteen states. The Lanmans are already planning to "conquer" the eastern part of our fantastic country on future vacation trips.

While the Lanmans were west their daughter Karen and her hubby Jim Dean and their adollables Michele and Nichole had gone south into Florida where they spent two days at Disney World and the remainder of the time on the beach at Clearwater, a favorite of theirs. They have returned to our town, too.

Sunday found the Lanmans and Deans all rested and attending the 51st Lanman reunion at the Mike Bell residence on Walnut Creek Pike. Another Lanman daughter Susan Spradlin and her Jason and Jeremy also were at the reunion while daddy Marvin stayed home because he was ill. We take it he was suffering from the virus malady practically everyone has had one time or another this summer. Several years ago it was called summer complaint. And it is still something to complain about.

For those who like boats, water, gospel singing and good food there is a truly terrific evening planned for September 24. The Crusaders Quartet is sponsoring a five hour Ohio River Cruise complete with dinner and a two hour gospel concert. All those interested must place reservations within the next week. For more information, contact Crusaders Quartet, Ron McNeal, 11662 Ballah Rd., Orient, Ohio 43146, 877-4166. The boat will leave Cincinnati at 7 p.m. sharp. It can be boarded behind Riverfront Stadium. Quite a number of persons have already placed their reservations.

For all those who are avid cookbook collectors please note that the women of Mt. Pleasant United Methodist Church are compiling a book and one can be reserved if you call Rosie (Mrs. Oscar) Atwood, 986-5635.

Mayor Paul and Marguerite Long want their many friends and neighbors to know how deeply they appreciate the lovely flowers, the consoling words, deeds and thoughts during the passing of Paul's mother, Mrs. Herschel (Eva) Long. Mrs. Long and her family have for many years been highly respected and contributing members of our neighboring community Five Points.

Be with you again next week, the Lord willing. Take care.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Says Husband Is No Longer King

DEAR ABBY: You were wrong when you told that wife who said her husband's "mistress" was a set of golf clubs to consider herself lucky and to take up golf, too.

Why should SHE have to take up HIS hobby to be with him? Maybe she doesn't care for golf? Men are selfish. They spend every spare minute with their hobbies while their wives twiddle their thumbs.

I've been reading your column for years, and you still use the same line. A wife once complained because her husband went deer hunting every chance he got, and you said, "Be grateful that he's out hunting DEER and not DEARS!"

Golding Supports Gym Move

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Brage Golding, the incoming Kent State University president, has expressed support for moving a proposed gymnasium annex further from the site of the 1970 shootings on the campus.

Golding said Friday the current site was a bad choice and he is trying to persuade trustees to ask the governor and the legislature for funds to make the move possible.

He also said he is urging the May 4th Coalition, supporters of which have been arrested for protesting the gym site, to accept a 300-foot rotation to shift the building.

The coalition has said that it wants the $6 million gym off the site altogether because it would be too close to the spot where the Ohio National Guard killed four students and wounded nine during a May 4, 1970 antiwar demonstration.

Although he doesn't take over as president until next month, Golding met informally Friday with trustees and leaders of the coalition.

Golding emphasized that although trustees set policy he will be in charge of running the university. "When it comes to running the university, I am the professional," he said. "I will be the one who knows what's going on in the university."

Golding, former president of San Diego State University, replaces Glenn Olds, who left to become president of Alaska Methodist University.

Another wife complained because her husband's hobby was cars. And you said, "Consider yourself lucky that your husband's hobby has four wheels instead of two legs!"

Times have changed, Abby. The day when the husband was king, and his wife and children walked three paces behind in respectful silence, is over. Get with it!

MODERN WIDOW

DEAR WOMAN: GOLF WIDOW'S letter prompted a variety of responses. Read on for a poignant letter from a woman whose ideas on the subject are 180 degrees from yours:

DEAR ABBY: In answer to JEALOUS whose husband's "mistress" was a set of golf clubs: I know exactly how she feels because I was in her position for 38 years. (I finally took up the game myself.)

Last November my golfer died of cancer. During the year he battled the disease he continued to play golf even though he was often in pain. His last outing was sitting in the car from where he could watch a foursome drive on his favorite hole.

His ashes were spread by our children on a certain hole at the point where his drives usually came to rest. Now I miss his practice shots in my yard; and our dog longs to shag those shots again.

Abby, please tell those "golf-widows" that there are worse hang-ups than a passion for golf.

"REAL" GOLF WIDOW

DEAR GOLF WIDOW: Well said. DEAR ABBY: I am a perfectly normal, happy married 48-year-old woman with a problem I've never seen in your column. On numerous occasions I have been made to feel like a dummy or some kind of oddball because I don't drive a car.

Twice I tried to learn, but gave up because I lack the confidence to drive alone. Two driving instructors told me that not everyone should drive a car. My problem is how to respond when people say, "Any idiot can learn to drive. What's wrong with you? You should be ashamed of yourself!"

Abby, are there others with this problem, or am I an oddball who really should be ashamed of myself?

DOESN'T DRIVE

DEAR DOESN'T: Cheer up. You belong to a large club. Don't worry about responding to insensitive clods who deserve to be ignored. How much safer our streets and highways would be if everyone who shouldn't drive didn't!

Note Protein Mineral Interaction In Cattle

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

There is an important interaction between sulfur, potassium, and protein in the feedlot performance of beef cattle being finished for slaughter, according to recent Ohio research.

Dr. F. M. Byers, animal scientist at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC), reported results of two protein experiments (one with yearlings, one with feeder calves) during the 1977 annual meeting of the American Society of Animal Science. He said the quantity of protein a beef animal eats each day is the key to maximum feedlot performance so the traditional method of expressing protein in percentage of ration may not be the best measure.

When Byers stopped feeding soybean meal to yearlings, rate of gain was not affected as long as the diet contained less than 0.14 per cent sulfur and at least 0.65 per cent potassium. When sulfur was increased over the 0.14 per cent level, average rate of gain went down.

With rapidly growing feeder calves, the interaction was also apparent. Increasing sulfur from 0.1 to 0.14 per cent caused a reduction in average daily gain, especially when additional potassium was fed. On cattle which had been fed urea before being placed on the basal ration of whole shelled corn and minerals, there was no response in gain when either urea or potassium was added.

Cattle which had previously received soybean meal as the protein supplement showed a significant response in rate of gain when potassium was increased from 0.5 to 0.65 per cent or when soybean meal was returned to the ration. Byers said that cattle on plant protein supplement diets require 800 to 900 grams of protein per head per day and that per cent protein in the diet needed to meet this requirement varies with feed intake. He also concluded that urea was of little value when added to the whole shelled corn diets.

Another Ohio study sought to spell out protein requirements of cattle differing in mature size. Results were reported by M. Coady, a graduate student working on his M.S. degree in Animal Science under Byers' direction.

Fall-born cattle were started on corn silage then rapidly switched to a full feed of whole shelled corn, minimum silage, and mineral supplement. Different groups were fed 0.75 to 1.5 pounds of soybean meal daily plus the full feed of corn.

Larger animals (represented by 75 per cent or more Charolais breeding) needed much higher levels of protein (more than 850 grams per day). Average size animals (represented by 50 per cent Charolais breeding) could get by on 800 grams of protein per head per day.

There was little variation in rate of gain with smaller cattle regardless of which level of soybean meal was fed. The larger cattle responded to the higher amount of supplement by gaining faster than larger cattle on the lower rate. But even with improved rate of gain (275 pounds per day) the larger cattle gained some 9 per cent slower than the smaller animals (2.95 pounds per day).

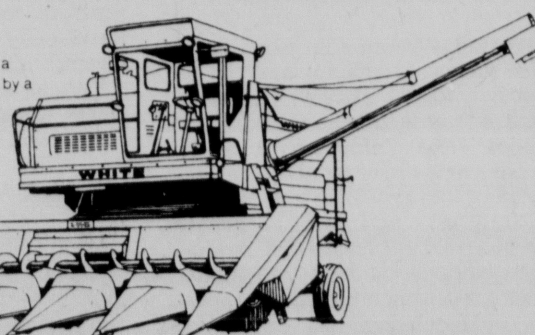

The animals were all fed to the same degree of fatness (grade). Previously it was believed that larger cattle gained weight faster. This is because cattle of different potential size were fed to similar weights or for similar lengths of time. However, these feeding methods either don't allow large size cattle to adequately fatten or cause smaller cattle to overfinish.

Coady said the average size cattle required fewer days in the feedlot to reach choice grade and were 10 per cent more efficient in converting feed to gain.

News For Homemakers

By BEVERLY SEYMOUR BECHTEL
County Extension Agent,
Home Economics

One of the pleasures of your own garden is the tasty flavor of fresh vegetables. Some of that goodness can be preserved by freezing such vegetables as brussels sprouts, snap beans, peppers and squash.

Now that surplus vegetables are on hand, Robert Joseph, Ohio State University Extension Food Specialist, says freeze them successfully.

To freeze brussels sprouts, Joseph says select firm, compact, medium-sized sprouts that are bright green. Remove sprouts from the main stem and handle individually. Wash thoroughly. If there is any evidence of insect life or damage, let stand in salted water for 1/2 hour. If sprouts are not uniform in size, sort into 2 or 3 sizes. Scald and cool.

Scalding Time: Scald small sprouts with steam for 3 minutes and large ones for 5 minutes. Or scald small ones in boiling water 3 minutes and 4 1/2 minutes for large ones. Cool quickly in ice water and drain.

Package in moisture-vapor proof containers. Seal, label, and freeze packages immediately. Ten pounds of sprouts will make about 10 12-ounce packages.

When freezing green or wax beans, select only tender, crisp, stringless pods with small to medium-sized seeds (seeds less than 1/2 inch long), says Joseph. Discard bruised, discolored or insect and disease-damaged pods. Process snap beans promptly, as they wilt within a few hours after harvest and may spoil and lose their quality.

Wash thoroughly in cold water, snip off ends, and sort into two or three sizes. The smallest size may be packed as whole beans. The next size may be sliced lengthwise (French style), and the largest size snapped or cut into 1-inch lengths.

Scald in water at 170 degrees F. - 1 1/2 minutes for young, tender French style; 2 1/2 minutes for young tender cut or whole beans; and 3 1/2 minutes for more mature cut or whole beans. Cool at once in ice water, then drain.

Package in moisture-vapor proof containers; seal and label the packages and freeze immediately. A bushel of beans will make about 35 12-ounce packages.

Green peppers frozen without heating are best for use in uncooked foods. Heated peppers are easier to pack and good for use in cooking. Select firm, crisp, thick, walled peppers, Joseph says.

Wash, cut out stems, cut in half, and remove seeds. If desired, cut into 1/2 inch strips or rings. Heat in boiling water, if desired: 3 minutes for halves or 2 minutes for slices. Cool promptly in cold water and drain.

If peppers have not been heated, pack in containers, leaving no head space. Seal and freeze. If heated, leave 1/2 inch head space.

To freeze hot peppers, wash and stem. Then pack into small containers, leaving no head space. Seal and freeze. Select young summer squash with small seeds and tender rind. Wash, cut in 1/2-inch slices and heat in boiling water for 3 minutes. Cool squash promptly in cold water and drain.

Pack into containers, leaving 1/2-inch head space. Seal and freeze.

Select only fully-matured, richly-colored and highly-flavored winter squash or pumpkins that have a smooth consistency when cooked. Wash and cut into 3 to 4-inch pieces. Remove seeds and fiber.

Scald by cooking in steam or bake in oven until tender. Scoop squash or pumpkin from rind or put through a food press, ricer or puree strainer. Cool by placing in pan and floating pan in ice water.

Pack in moisture-proof containers, seal and label. If desired, those spices that would be used when making pies may be added to the puree before it is packaged. Freeze immediately. Ten pounds of pumpkin or squash will make five 16-ounce packages.

Note Protein Mineral Interaction In Cattle

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

There is an important interaction between sulfur, potassium, and protein in the feedlot performance of beef cattle being finished for slaughter, according to recent Ohio research.

Dr. F. M. Byers, animal scientist at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC), reported results of two protein experiments (one with yearlings, one with feeder calves) during the 1977 annual meeting of the American Society of Animal Science. He said the quantity of protein a beef animal eats each day is the key to maximum feedlot performance so the traditional method of expressing protein in percentage of ration may not be the best measure.

When Byers stopped feeding soybean meal to yearlings, rate of gain was not affected as long as the diet contained less than 0.14 per cent sulfur and at least 0.65 per cent potassium. When sulfur was increased over the 0.14 per cent level, average rate of gain went down.

With rapidly growing feeder calves, the interaction was also apparent. Increasing sulfur from 0.1 to 0.14 per cent caused a reduction in average daily gain, especially when additional potassium was fed. On cattle which had been fed urea before being placed on the basal ration of whole shelled corn and minerals, there was no response in gain when either urea or potassium was added.

Cattle which had previously received soybean meal as the protein supplement showed a significant response in rate of gain when potassium was increased from 0.5 to 0.65 per cent or when soybean meal was returned to the ration. Byers said that cattle on plant protein supplement diets require 800 to 900 grams of protein per head per day and that per cent protein in the diet needed to meet this requirement varies with feed intake. He also concluded that urea was of little value when added to the whole shelled corn diets.

Another Ohio study sought to spell out protein requirements of cattle differing in mature size. Results were reported by M. Coady, a graduate student working on his M.S. degree in Animal Science under Byers' direction.

Full-born cattle were started on corn silage then rapidly switched to a full feed of whole shelled corn, minimum silage, and mineral supplement. Different groups were fed 0.75 to 1.5 pounds of soybean meal daily plus the full feed of corn.

Larger animals (represented by 75 per cent or more Charolais breeding) needed much higher levels of protein (more than 850 grams per day). Average size animals (represented by 50 per cent Charolais breeding) could get by on 800 grams of protein per head per day.

There was little variation in rate of gain with smaller cattle regardless of which level of soybean meal was fed. The larger cattle responded to the higher amount of supplement by gaining faster than larger cattle on the lower rate. But even with improved rate of gain (275 pounds per day) the larger cattle gained some 9 per cent slower than the smaller animals (2.95 pounds per day).

The animals were all fed to the same degree of fatness (grade). Previously it was believed that larger cattle gained weight faster. This is because cattle of different potential size were fed to similar weights or for similar lengths of time. However, these feeding methods either don't allow large size cattle to adequately fatten or cause smaller cattle to overfinish.

Coady said the average size cattle required fewer days in the feedlot to reach choice grade and were 10 per cent more efficient in converting feed to gain.

Williamsport News

By EILEEN EASTERDAY, Phone 986-3481

It seems incredible that school will begin in just a short time. As hot and humid as the summer has been it still has gone quickly by and here we are buying school supplies and clothing. It only takes the blink of an eye, or so it seems anymore, and another of the four seasons is with us. As I approach the big five-O birth date (Sept. 4) my whole being becomes more traumatic and discombobulated.

Speaking of time passing swiftly, why it seems only last week that Terry Dountz was among the young people populating our household and now here he is one of the law enforcers for our village. We wish him well and feel certain he will sincerely try to be a fair, firm and conscientious lawman.

Class Reunion

Points Pike. This will be a change of scenery for the group since in prior years as they have chosen a spot at Deercreek Dam park. Secretary Mary Alice Greenwood mailed the invitations some time ago but in the event a class member did not receive his or hers this notice will serve as a further invitation to be sure and join classmates for the covered dish 5:30 p.m. dinner. Families are welcome, of course.

Some of our vacationing friends and neighbors have returned to the fold. Coming home Saturday were Earl and Maxine Lanman. They went "that-a-way" west again and have now covered all the western sector of the United States (except Hawaii and Alaska). Time was spent with Mabel Lanman and her grandkiddies at Electric City, Wash. They toured Coulee Dam while there and also Mt. Rainier. They traveled down the coast to Oregon, over to Idaho and to Utah, on to Colorado where they courageously drove the nineteen miles up Pike's Peak and have vowed "Never Again." Another highlight was coming through Monarch Crest in the Continental Divide with an eleven thousand plus elevation. Dodge City in Kansas proved to be interesting for the travelers, too. All together their trip took them into fourteen states. The Lanmans are already planning to "conquer" the eastern part of our fantastic country on future vacation trips.

While the Lanmans were west their daughter Karen and her hubby Jim Dean and their adollables Michele and Nichole had gone south into Florida where they spent two days at Disney World and the remainder of the time on the beach at Clearwater, a favorite of theirs. They have returned to our town, too.

Sunday found the Lanmans and Deans all rested and attending the 51st Lanman reunion at the Mike Bell residence on Walnut Creek Pike. Another Lanman daughter Susan Spradlin and her Jason and Jeremy also were at the reunion while daddy Marvin stayed home because he was ill. We take it he was suffering from the virus malady practically everyone has had one time or another this summer. Several years ago it was called summer complaint. And it is still something to complain about.

For those who like boats, water, gospel singing and good food there is a truly terrific evening planned for September 24. The Crusaders Quartet is sponsoring a five hour Ohio River Cruise complete with dinner and a two hour gospel concert. All those interested must place reservations within the next week. For more information, contact Crusaders Quartet, Ron McNeal, 11662 Ballah Rd., Orient, Ohio 43146, 877-4166. The boat will leave Cincinnati at 7 p.m. sharp. It can be boarded behind Riverfront Stadium. Quite a number of persons have already placed their reservations.

For all those who are avid cookbook collectors please note that the women of Mt. Pleasant United Methodist Church are compiling a book and one can be reserved if you call Rosie (Mrs. Oscar) Atwood, 986-5635.

Mayor Paul and Marguerite Long want their many friends and neighbors to know how deeply they appreciate the lovely flowers, the consoling words, deeds and thoughts during the passing of Paul's mother, Mrs. Herschel (Eva) Long. Mrs. Long and her family have for many years been highly respected and contributing members of our neighboring community Five Points.

Be with you again next week, the Lord willing. Take care. Think about: Experience is knowledge acquired too late.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Says Husband Is No Longer King

DEAR ABBY: You were wrong when you told that wife who said her husband's "mistress" was a set of golf clubs to consider herself lucky and to take up golf, too.

Why should SHE have to take up HIS hobby to be with him? Maybe she doesn't care for golf? Men are selfish. They spend every spare minute with their hobbies while their wives twiddle their thumbs.

I've been reading your column for years, and you still use the same line. A wife once complained because her husband went deer hunting every chance he got, and you said, "Be grateful that he's out hunting DEER and not DEARS!"

Golding Supports Gym Move

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Brage Golding, the incoming Kent State University president, has expressed support for moving a proposed gymnasium annex further from the site of the 1970 shootings on the campus.

Golding said Friday the current site was a bad choice and he is trying to persuade trustees to ask the governor and the legislature for funds to make the move possible.

He also said he is urging the May 4th Coalition, supporters of which have been arrested for protesting the gym site, to accept a 300-foot rotation to shift the building.

The coalition has said that it wants the $6 million gym off the site altogether because it would be too close to the spot where the Ohio National Guard killed four students and wounded nine during a May 4, 1970 antiwar demonstration.

Although he doesn't take over as president until next month, Golding met informally Friday with trustees and leaders of the coalition.

Golding emphasized that although trustees set policy he will be in charge of running the university. "When it comes to running the university, I am the professional," he said. "I will be the one who knows what's going on in the university."

Golding, former president of San Diego State University, replaces Glenn Olds, who left to become president of Alaska Methodist University.

Another wife complained because her husband's hobby was cars. And you said, "Consider yourself lucky that your husband's hobby has four wheels instead of two legs!"

Times have changed, Abby. The day when the husband was king, and his wife and children walked three paces behind in respectful silence, is over. Get with it!

MODERN WIDOW

DEAR WOMAN: GOLF WIDOW'S letter prompted a variety of responses. Read on for a poignant letter from a woman whose ideas on the subject are 180 degrees from yours:

DEAR ABBY: In answer to JEALOUS whose husband's "mistress" was a set of golf clubs: I know exactly how she feels because I was in her position for 38 years. (I finally took up the game myself.)

Last November my golfer died of cancer. During the year he battled the disease he continued to play golf even though he was often in pain. His last outing was sitting in the car from where he could watch a foursome drive on his favorite hole.

His ashes were spread by our children on a certain hole at the point where his drives usually came to rest. Now I miss his practice shots in our yard; and our dog loves to shag those shots again.

Abby, please tell those "golf-widows" that there are worse hang-ups than a passion for golf.

"REAL" GOLF WIDOW

DEAR GOLF WIDOW: Well said. DEAR ABBY: I am a perfectly normal, happy married 48-year-old woman with a problem I've never seen in your column. On numerous occasions I have been made to feel like a dummy or some kind of oddball because I don't drive a car.

Twice I tried to learn, but gave up because I lack the confidence to drive alone. Two driving instructors told me that not everyone should drive a car.

My problem is how to respond when people say, "Any idiot can learn to drive. What's wrong with you? You should be ashamed of yourself!"

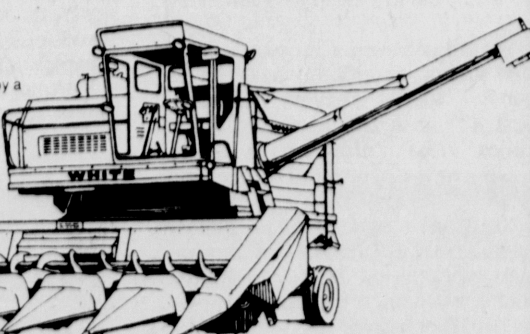

Abby, are there others with this problem, or am I an oddball who really should be ashamed of myself?

DOESN'T DRIVE

DEAR DOESN'T: Cheer up. You belong to a large club. Don't worry about responding to insensitive clods who deserve to be ignored. How much safer our streets and highways would be if everyone who shouldn't drive didn't!

Shuffling Intelligence

Organization of the American intelligence community certainly has changed radically from the days not long ago when anonymity was the password and diffusion was the operational standard. After the reorganization plan announced by the President has been put in place, there will be little question who to see on intelligence matters. Stansfield

Turner, head of the CIA, will be the individual with a finger on much of the intelligence pulse. Even defense intelligence, largely autonomous in the past, will be under budgeting and overall assignment control of the CIA chief. Operational responsibility will remain within the Pentagon. To prevent the evolution of an intelligence czar, Turner's policies will be reviewed by two new committees — a National Intelligence Tasking Center and a Policy Review Committee. Now that the personnel, policy and structural changes have formed, perhaps the intelligence services can concentrate on improving the quality of their work. That must have suffered in the turmoil of the last several years.

Diapers And Marriage Contract

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK (KFS) — The "prenuptial contract" — a legal paper defining the rights and responsibilities of a couple before they enter into marriage — appears to be growing in popularity. "I can't believe it!" said Liza Minnelli recently, when told that the prenuptial papers often spelled out who should do certain household chores, including specifics of child-rearing. "It sounds terribly cold and calculating," Liza, married to film and TV producer Jack Haley Jr., added that if couples have to spell out such obligations before an attorney before entering into matrimony, they "certainly don't have the mutual trust and respect" which are the prime requisites of a loving relationship. "I would never marry a woman who wanted me to sign a paper saying I had to do equal diapering," says a young editor who asked not to be named. "From what I understand, that's what these contracts are mainly about. They're the concept of feminists who want an attorney to do their nagging for them." Actually, the division of chores in marriage is only one facet of the relatively new "prenuptial contract" concept. (And the inherently silliest. If a husband backs down on his contractual agreement to do the laundry, who enforces the law?)

of their contracts, begin to see the true, often selfish and demanding, dispositions of their "intendeds," and call off the wedding after a period of quibbling. Another potential asset is that emotionally immature couples, in negotiating contracts, gradually come to see the confining nature of their impending lives together — and, in so doing grow up rather suddenly. "Sometimes," says the lawyer, "they realize their commitments to one another, and it gives them strength and reassurance, actually reinforces their devotion. More often though, in my experience, it scares hell out of them. You can almost see their eyes opening to the pitfalls of marriage, and their hearts closing on the pitfalls of love." One thing is certain: for good or bad, the prenuptial contract idea defines love and marriage — and in so doing, robs it of that essence of sweet mystery that lovers once cherished. Perhaps that's good: for centuries, cultures planned "arranged marriages" — with parents mating their offspring in what they considered a suitable manner. The difference here is that couples themselves make their own "arranged marriages." It could lead to a lowering of the divorce statistics. On the other hand, it's not much fun, dicing up love and slicing up sentiment. I am reminded of the immortal words of E. B. White and James Thurber who, in a 1929 book titled "Is Sex Necessary?" wrote... "One may define love and then have all kinds of trouble experiencing it because, once having defined it, one is in too pompous a frame of mind ever again to submit to its sweet illusion. By and large, love is easier to experience before it has been explained — easier and cleaner. "Understanding the principles of passion is like knowing how to drive a car; once mastered, all is smoothed out; no more does one experience the feelings of perilous adventure, the misgivings, the diverting little hesitations, the wrong turns, the false starts, the glorious insecurity. "All is smoothed out and all, so to speak, is lost." Although White and Thurber wrote their treatise nearly 50 years ago, they could have been forecasting today's updating of the eternal dilemma, when they concluded: "Marriage, as an instrument, is a well-nigh perfect thing. The trouble is that it cannot be successfully applied to the emotional relationships of men and women. It could much more easily be applied to something else — possibly professional tennis."

Castro To Allow Americans To Leave

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Fidel Castro, in a gesture that could lead to improved U.S.-Cuban relations, is ready to let about 80 American citizens living in his country leave with their Cuban families. But the Cuban leader rejected a U.S. request, conveyed by Sen. Frank Church, for the release of seven Americans serving lengthy prison terms on charges of espionage and "counter-revolutionary activities." Church returned home Thursday from a four-day visit that included a cross-country tour of the Cuban countryside, offshore spear fishing and hours of talk with Castro. The Idaho Democrat said Castro had "asked for nothing" in response to his agreement to let the Cuban families leave, but the move "put the ball back into the American court." "It is obvious that he would expect the United States to respond in some way," Church said on the return flight to Washington. "He clearly hopes that relations with the United States will continue to improve. Certainly he looks toward the day that the U.S. trade embargo is lifted and full diplomatic relations are restored." Church appeared disappointed at Castro's refusal to take action on behalf of the prisoners, serving terms that range from 20 to 30 years. Saying the Cuban leader "gave me his reasons," Church furnished few details of their discussion. "He asked me, 'Should we talk about four hijackers and three CIA agents, or about 100 Americans who can now bring their families to the United States?'" Church said. The Americans with Cuban families, believed to number 84, have been free to leave. But they have been unable previously to gain Cuban permission to take their families along. Quake Hits California LOS ANGELES (AP) — Windows broke, dishes rattled and buildings shuddered when a moderate earthquake rumbled through southern California from Santa Monica to Santa Barbara. "Our building rolled really good with it," Los Angeles Police Sgt. Charles Meter said of the Thursday evening temblor. Meter said the quake was strong enough to shake the three-story reinforced-concrete station and felt as if it were stronger than the 4.4 magnitude recorded on the Richter scale. "When this building rolls, you know it's a good one," Meter said. James Whitcomb, a seismologist at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, said the tremor's epicenter was located just outside of Sylmar, 25 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles in the San Fernando Valley. That was the same site as the devastating earthquake of 1971, which registered 6.6 on the Richter scale and killed 64 persons.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today day, Aug. 13, the 225th day of 1977. There are 140 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On is date in 1521, Spanish conqueror Hernando Cortez captured Mexico City from the Aztecs.

On this date: In 1848, the American flag was raised in Los Angeles. In 1937, the Japanese attacked China's biggest city, Shanghai. In 1961, Communist East Germany sealed off the border between East and West Berlin, closing the Brandenburg Gate to halt the flight of refugees to the West.

In 1965, 2,000 heavily armed National Guardsmen moved into Los Angeles ghetto areas to quell black rioting. In 1970, consumer advocate Ralph Nader got $425,000 from General Motors in an out-of-court settlement of an invasion of privacy lawsuit.

Ten years ago: U.S. bombers pounding targets in North Vietnam struck a railway yard and highway bridge only 10 miles from the China border. Five years ago: United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim issued a report indicating his belief that deals made between big powers were not adequate to insure peace and deploring downgrading of the U.N.

One year ago: South Africa pledged its support for an American effort to bring about a negotiated settlement in neighboring Rhodesia, saying failure would invite Communist intervention.

Today's birthdays: Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro is 51 years old. Movie director Alfred Hitchcock is 78.

Thought for today: Anger is momentary madness, so control your passion or it will control you — Horace, Roman poet and satirist, 65 to 8 B.C.

"Now, there's a wife who REALLY dresses to please her husband."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The epidemic of gonorrheal infections continues to grow unabated. Despite the most rigorous health campaigns, this infectious venereal disease continues to soar. Physicians and scientists, stymied by the continued spread, are devoting their energies to the only other alternative, namely, finding a preventative vaccine.

Extensive research now seems to be paying off. From a number of hospitals and medical centers, preliminary evidence is already present that an anti-gonorrheal vaccine is on the horizon.

Experimental work in animals has been sufficiently successful to stimulate scientists to lay out a program of study in humans.

Despite such hopeful news, our educational campaigns must continue. We must bombard young people with information that gonorrhea is NOT a casual disease that has no consequences. For, besides infertility in the female, there are in both sexes many complications which can result from the neglect of early treatment of gonorrhea.

A new addition to the early detection of cancer is the use of microwaves. These waves, already used in a vast variety of fields, are now being applied as a detector for tumors of the breast.

Mammography, by X-rays, is known to have many advantages and some disadvantages. Thermography is another method for detecting "hot spots" over the breast. By studying changes in temperature on the breast surface, underlying tumors can be detected easily.

The new microwave method, in addition to those already being used, offers enormous possibilities for the early detection of cancer of the breasts. And herein lies the greatest chance for complete cure.

Multiple sclerosis in its early stages is often very difficult to diagnose. There are a number of neurological conditions whose symptoms closely resemble those of multiple sclerosis.

Now, from the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston comes the report that highly sensitive brain-stem tests and brain-wave test may establish the diagnosis much earlier providing for intensive treatment, in an effort to stem the progression of the disease.

Lance On Shaky Ground With Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will continue to discuss official business with Budget Director Bert Lance, but he is withholding expressions of support for his longtime friend, whose personal finances are under federal investigation. White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Thursday that Carter wants to avoid influencing the investigation, being conducted by the Comptroller of the Currency. Powell faced his first on-the-record, at-length questioning on the investigation at the daily White House news briefing and said in a carefully worded statement that Carter would withhold comment on Lance or the probe. In so doing, Powell left Lance without any statement of support from the person who could have been his strongest defender.

"It is our belief that the only appropriate course of action for us to follow while the inquiry is underway is to withhold any comment which could be construed as influencing the conclusion of that inquiry," Powell said.

The press secretary said he realized that the absence of comment on the case could be viewed several ways, presumably as a lack of support for Lance.

Powell said Carter received a report on the investigation Thursday by Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, who asked for the session.

"It was our feeling that the President should be kept abreast in general terms ... but that he not become involved in the details or in any way attempt to direct the inquiry," Powell said.

"The fact that the friendship is there, that the personal relationship is there, makes it particularly important that if we err we err on the side of caution," Powell said. "I know of no other course of action to take."

Powell said the two men would continue to discuss budget-related matters.

"There is no alteration in relations or functions," the press secretary said. "The President will continue to talk with Mr. Lance. In any situation where he needs to talk with Mr. Lance about Office of Management and Budget meetings, they will."

'Hair' Film

NEW YORK (AP) — United Artists has announced the upcoming filming of "Hair," one of the most popular musicals of the 1960s, under the direction of Academy Award-winning director Milos Forman.

Filming of the musical by Jerome Ragni, James Rado and Galt Macdermot will be on various Midwestern and New York locations. The screenplay for the film was written by Michael Weller.

"Hair" opened on April 29, 1968, at the Billmore Theater and continued its smash Broadway run through July 1972. Nineteen companies produced the musical around the world. There were a total of 2,000 recordings, both albums and singles, made of "Hair," with sales of more than 30 million copies.

The United States had one life insurance company from 1759 to 1768. In 1970, there were 1,800, when 355 million policies were in force and coverage per family averaged $21,000, says the Census Bureau.

A Page Of Opinion

Shuffling Intelligence

Organization of the American intelligence community certainly has changed radically from the days not long ago when anonymity was the password and diffusion was the operational standard. After the reorganization plan announced by the President has been put in place, there will be little question who to see on intelligence matters. Stansfield

Turner, head of the CIA, will be the individual with a finger on much of the intelligence pulse. Even defense intelligence, largely autonomous in the past, will be under budgeting and overall assignment control of the CIA chief. Operational responsibility will remain within the Pentagon. To prevent the evolution of an intelligence czar, Turner's policies will be reviewed by two new committees — a National Intelligence Tasking Center and a Policy Review Committee. Now that the personnel, policy and structural changes have formed, perhaps the intelligence services can concentrate on improving the quality of their work. That must have suffered in the turmoil of the last several years.

Diapers And Marriage Contract

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK (KFS) — The "prenuptial contract" — a legal paper defining the rights and responsibilities of a couple before they enter into marriage — appears to be growing in popularity. "I can't believe it!" said Liza Minnelli recently, when told that the prenuptial papers often spelled out who should do certain household chores, including specifics of child-rearing. "It sounds terribly cold and calculating," Liza, married to film and TV producer Jack Haley Jr., added that if couples have to spell out such obligations before an attorney before entering into matrimony, they "certainly don't have the mutual trust and respect" which are the prime requisites of a loving relationship. "I would never marry a woman who wanted me to sign a paper saying I had to do equal diapering," says a young editor who asked not to be named. "From what I understand, that's what these contracts are mainly about. They're the concept of feminists who want an attorney to do their nagging for them." Actually, the division of chores in marriage is only one facet of the relatively new "prenuptial contract" concept. (And the inherently silliest. If a husband backs down on his contractual agreement to do the laundry, who enforces the law?) According to some experts, the idea was originally created by wealthy persons, usually male, to protect their fortunes in case a marriage turns out to be ill-starred. The Jacqueline Kennedy-Aristotle Onassis union was preceded by a much-publicized prenuptial document, and Barbara Hutton forced at least some of her grooms to sign papers renouncing their rights to exorbitant chunks of her fortune in case of divorce. Most clients of one New York lawyer, Raoul L. Felder, are (he has reported) wealthy, older men who have been divorced and want to protect their finances in the event that a new marriage doesn't work. But in the last two or three years, the money has been less a factor in prenuptial contracts — among younger people — than parity of physical chores and child-rearing responsibilities. Now that so many couples are living together out of wedlock, there seems to be a reluctance to get married — at least until both parties feel the arrangement will be equitable and satisfying to both. "Everybody wants to feel 'fulfilled' these days," says a lawyer. "And they want to know that each party will pull his or her weight." "As a result, I've seen contracts that specify quite firmly who is to do the bookkeeping, who is to vacuum, who is to take out garbage — chores like this, which in every generation in past history have been flexible. Many contracts even insist that both parties be monogamous." Of course, there are good points to be noted in the idea of prenuptial agreements: number one being that many couples, in negotiating the terms of their contracts, begin to see the true, often selfish and demanding, dispositions of their "intendeds," and call off the wedding after a period of quibbling. Another potential asset is that emotionally immature couples, in negotiating contracts, gradually come to see the confining nature of their impending lives together — and, in so doing grow up rather suddenly. "Sometimes," says the lawyer, "they realize their commitments to one another, and it gives them strength and reassurance, actually reinforces their devotion. More often though, in my experience, it scares hell out of them. You can almost see their eyes opening to the pitfalls of marriage, and their hearts closing on the pitfalls of love." One thing is certain: for good or bad, the prenuptial contract idea defines love and marriage — and in so doing, robs it of that essence of sweet mystery that lovers once cherished. Perhaps that's good: for centuries, cultures planned "arranged marriages" — with parents mating their offspring in what they considered a suitable manner. The difference here is that couples themselves make their own "arranged marriages." It could lead to a lowering of the divorce statistics. On the other hand, it's not much fun, dicing up love and slicing up sentiment. I am reminded of the immortal words of E. B. White and James Thurber who, in a 1929 book titled "Is Sex Necessary?", wrote... "One may define love and then have all kinds of trouble experiencing it because, once having defined it, one is in too pompous a frame of mind ever again to submit to its sweet illusion. By and large, love is easier to experience before it has been explained — easier and cleaner. "Understanding the principles of passion is like knowing how to drive a car; once mastered, all is smoothed out; no more does one experience the feelings of perilous adventure, the misgivings, the diverting little hesitations, the wrong turns, the false starts, the glorious insecurity. "All is smoothed out and all, so to speak, is lost." Although White and Thurber wrote their treatise nearly 50 years ago, they could have been forecasting today's updating of the eternal dilemma, when they concluded: "Marriage, as an instrument, is a well-nigh perfect thing. The trouble is that it cannot be successfully applied to the emotional relationships of men and women. It could much more easily be applied to something else — possibly professional tennis."

Castro To Allow Americans To Leave

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Fidel Castro, in a gesture that could lead to improved U.S.-Cuban relations, is ready to let about 80 American citizens living in his country leave with their Cuban families. But the Cuban leader rejected a U.S. request, conveyed by Sen. Frank Church, for the release of seven Americans serving lengthy prison terms on charges of espionage and "counter-revolutionary activities." Church returned home Thursday from a four-day visit that included a cross-country tour of the Cuban countryside, offshore spear fishing and hours of talk with Castro. The Idaho Democrat said Castro had "asked for nothing" in response to his agreement to let the Cuban families leave, but the move "put the ball back into the American court." "It is obvious that he would expect the United States to respond in some way," Church said on the return flight to Washington. "He clearly hopes that relations with the United States will continue to improve. Certainly he looks toward the day that the U.S. trade embargo is lifted and full diplomatic relations are restored." Church appeared disappointed at Castro's refusal to take action on behalf of the prisoners, serving terms that range from 20 to 30 years. Saying the Cuban leader "gave me his reasons," Church furnished few details of their discussion. "He asked me, 'Should we talk about four hijackers and three CIA agents, or about 100 Americans who can now bring their families to the United States?'" Church said. The Americans with Cuban families, believed to number 84, have been free to leave. But they have been unable previously to gain Cuban permission to take their families along.

Quake Hits California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Windows broke, dishes rattled and buildings shuddered when a moderate earthquake rumbled through southern California from Santa Monica to Santa Barbara. "Our building rolled really good with it," Los Angeles Police Sgt. Charles Meter said of the Thursday evening tremor. Meter said the quake was strong enough to shake the three-story reinforced-concrete station and felt as if it were stronger than the 4.4 magnitude recorded on the Richter scale. "When this building rolls, you know it's a good one," Meter said. James Whitcomb, a seismologist at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, said the tremor's epicenter was located just outside of Sylmar, 25 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles in the San Fernando Valley. That was the same site as the devastating earthquake of 1971, which registered 6.6 on the Richter scale and killed 64 persons.

Dear Editor: Our family would like to publicly acknowledge the hard work put forth by John Schein and Nolan Hines, at the fair this past week. Many were heard to say "if it weren't for these two there would have been no fair." I'm sure many events would have been incomplete without their efforts, so here's a hearty thank you to those two (and others). Sincerely, WILLIAM WINTER FAMILY Rt. 1 Ashville

Defendant Saves Top Defense Counsel

CINCINNATI (AP) — Robert Hanna planned to be back in court today thanks, apparently, to the medical knowledge of his client, Dr. Stuart Kutler.

Kutler, a Brecksville, Ohio, physician, was summoned Thursday from a crowded courtroom where he was awaiting the beginning of defense arguments in his trial on murder charges.

Scheduled to be one of the first witnesses called in his own defense, Kutler rushed to the aid of his chief defense attorney, who had fainted in the lobby of the Hamilton County Courthouse.

Kutler administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until a rescue team arrived.

"If Dr. Kutler hadn't taken those steps, the episode probably would have been prolonged," said Dr. Sanford Courter, who treated Hanna at the hospital. "I do not, however, feel that it was a potentially fatal episode," Courter added.

Ironically, earlier in the day, Hanna had delivered an impassioned but unsuccessful plea for acquittal of Kutler, who is charged with killing the 8-year-old son of his former lover. He faces a prison term of between 15 years and life if convicted.

Courter said that the 48-year-old Hanna's collapse was brought about by extreme nervous fatigue and was probably not a heart condition.

"A collapse of his blood pressure resulted in the fainting spell," Courter said. "His respiration became so weak that it had to be supported by mouth-to-mouth."

Kutler accompanied his attorney in the ambulance that brought him to a local hospital and he stayed with Hanna until his release from the emergency room about four hours later.

Allison Lohrum was one of a number of people who had just finished their lunch and were hurrying to get a seat for the murder trial, which was moved here because of pretrial publicity in Cleveland.

Phone Pacts Readied

By The Associated Press

Negotiations on local disputes continued today between the Communication Workers of America (CWA) and the Ohio and Cincinnati Bell telephone companies to try to reach a settlement before Sunday.

Similar bargaining sessions were being held in Columbus between representatives of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) Local 2020 and Western Electric officials in Columbus.

The different parties were given a week to settle local disputes after the CWA national union agreed Aug. 6 to a basic contract with the Bell System. The national pact provides a 31 per cent increase in wages and benefits over three years. The same basic agreement was reached with the smaller IBEW.

Both management and union representatives said they were optimistic the new pacts would be concluded by the deadline today.

Utility Bill Aid Deadline Now Aug. 19

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The welfare department extended Thursday from Aug. 12 to Aug. 19 the deadline for Ohio's elderly and low income families to apply for federal funds to help pay home heating bills backlogged from last winter.

A spokesman said the response to the "crisis intervention program" has been less than expected at the 88 county welfare department where applications are being taken.

Under the program, Ohioans 65 and over whose utilities have been cut off receive top priority for one-time grants equalling unpaid bills or $250, whichever is less.

Others, in order of priority, are elderly households with delinquent bills, low income families who have had utilities shut off, low income families with delinquent bills, and those from both groups who can meet welfare department criteria for "dire need."

Jean Adkins, spokesman for the welfare department's division of public assistance and social services, said the division didn't have figures as to how many persons have applied statewide.

But she said telephone conversations with officials in most counties indicated the demand had been less than expected. Even in Cuyahoga County, the state's most populous, she said the response has been surprisingly low.

Ohio received a federal grant of $13.3 million to apportion among the counties on the basis of need. Any unused funds will be turned over to the department of economic and community development department for use in its winterization programs.

Defendant Saves Top Defense Counsel

CINCINNATI (AP) — Robert Hanna planned to be back in court today thanks, apparently, to the medical knowledge of his client, Dr. Stuart Kutler.

Kutler, a Brecksville, Ohio, physician, was summoned Thursday from a crowded courtroom where he was awaiting the beginning of defense arguments in his trial on murder charges.

Scheduled to be one of the first witnesses called in his own defense, Kutler rushed to the aid of his chief defense attorney, who had fainted in the lobby of the Hamilton County Courthouse.

Kutler administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until a rescue team arrived.

"If Dr. Kutler hadn't taken those steps, the episode probably would have been prolonged," said Dr. Sanford Courter, who treated Hanna at the hospital. "I do not, however, feel that it was a potentially fatal episode," Courter added.

Ironically, earlier in the day, Hanna had delivered an impassioned but unsuccessful plea for acquittal of Kutler, who is charged with killing the 8-year-old son of his former lover. He faces a prison term of between 15 years and life if convicted.

Courter said that the 48-year-old Hanna's collapse was brought about by extreme nervous fatigue and was probably not a heart condition.

"A collapse of his blood pressure resulted in the fainting spell," Courter said. "His respiration became so weak that it had to be supported by mouth-to-mouth."

Kutler accompanied his attorney in the ambulance that brought him to a local hospital and he stayed with Hanna until his release from the emergency room about four hours later.

Allison Lohrum was one of a number of people who had just finished their lunch and were hurrying to get a seat for the murder trial, which was moved here because of pretrial publicity in Cleveland.

Phone Pacts Readied

By The Associated Press
Negotiations on local disputes continued today between the Communication Workers of America (CWA) and the Ohio and Cincinnati Bell telephone companies to try to reach a settlement before Sunday.

Similar bargaining sessions were being held in Columbus between representatives of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) Local 2020 and Western Electric officials in Columbus.

The different parties were given a week to settle local disputes after the CWA national union agreed Aug. 6 to a basic contract with the Bell System. The national pact provides a 31 per cent increase in wages and benefits over three years. The same basic agreement was reached with the smaller IBEW.

Both management and union representatives said they were optimistic the new pacts would be concluded by the deadline today.

Fire Levels Barn, Straw

Fire destroyed a barn and $8,000 worth of equipment at a Goodman-Teegardin Road farm owned by Clarence Swayer.

Jerry Smith, who lives on the Route 1, Groveport, farm, told Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Bill Carmean that he first spotted the blaze about 5:30 p.m. Friday.

Smith flagged a passing motorist, who notified fire officials of the blaze.

Members of the Bloom Twp., Madison Twp., and Harrison Twp. departments battled the fire, but could not save the $7,000 barn or $8,000 equipment including 2,500 bales of straw and hay, a plow, a forage harvester, an elevator and a rotary hoe.

Fire officials suspect the blaze may have started from combustion created by newly-made straw.

However, the car did strike the rear of the cruiser.

Robert E. Specht, 32, Lancaster, was driver of the car, according to Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Nick Franklin, who investigated the accident.

Specht told Deputy Franklin that he was blinded by bright lights on a north-bound car ahead of the cruiser.

Minor damage was reported to both cars and no one was injured, including a passenger in the cruiser, Ptl. Allan Hawks, 22, 336 E. Franklin St.

IT'S NO KITTEN — This catfish cannot be considered a little catch, as it weighs almost 30 pounds and measures 39½ inches long. It was caught Aug. 5 by Bernard (Bummy) Ross, 227 Town St., to the left, and John Fyffe, 210 Logan St. right, below Deercreek Dam. Although the type of bait used is a secret, Ross revealed that it was some type of dead fish.

Giants Edge Cincy Reds, 4-3

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pitcher John Montefusco of the San Francisco Giants says he's well on his way back from a rotten start this season and gives some of the credit to part-time catcher Gary Alexander.

The pair combined talents Friday night for a 4-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds, with Montefusco pitching eight strong innings and Alexander providing a home run and a 410-foot triple.

"I'm coming back," declared Montefusco, 6-9, following his third straight victory. "I'm learning how to pitch to left-handed hitters — I'm not afraid of them anymore. I've become a smarter pitcher."

Montefusco was lifted after Ken Griffey singled and Joe Morgan walked to open the ninth. He allowed five hits and struck out nine in eight-plus innings.

"Alexander worked me great," said

Montefusco, who was bailed out in the ninth by Gary Lavelle and Randy Moffitt. "Gary and I worked together in the minors and he also caught my no-hitter last year."

"There's something about him," noted Montefusco. "He keeps on top of me the whole game and makes me put the ball where he wants it — or else."

Alexander, who is sharing catching duties with Marc Hill, was even more impressive with the bat Friday. He tripled and scored the tying run in the two-run fifth inning and accounted for the eventual winning run with a seventh inning homer.

Both blasts came off Reds' rookie starter Mario Soto, 2-2, a case of familiarity bringing success.

"I caught Mario in the Dominican Republic last winter, so I know exactly how he pitches," said Alexander. "I was glad to see him out there. I can't hit a ball any harder than I hit that triple."

Soto's bases-loaded wild pitch gave San Francisco a run in the first, but Mike Lum's homer made it 1-1 in the second. Johnny Bench's sacrifice fly pushed Cincinnati ahead in the fourth and the Giants went ahead to stay in the fifth on triples by Alexander and Derrel Thomas and a sacrifice fly by Rob Andrews.

"It's the same old story — our 22nd one-run loss," said Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson. "Montefusco pitched a super game and our kid (Soto) didn't throw as well as he has been lately."

The Reds played without George Foster, the major league home run leader, who was sidelined with the flu. The Giants' Bill Madlock was hit by a pitch in the first inning and had to leave the game with a swollen left arm above the elbow.

Aircraft Failure

Scares Cincy Reds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A malfunctioning aircraft landing gear gave members of the Cincinnati Reds baseball team some anxious moments early Friday during a Los Angeles-to-San Francisco flight.

Fire trucks, placed on alert, lined the runway when the plane landed without incident.

A defective pin prevented the landing gear from working properly forcing a crew member to manually crank it from its housing.

A reporter traveling with the team said plane occupants heard a loud whine pierce the pressurized cabin when several attempts were made to get the landing gear down.

The players, many of them visibly shaken, greeted the safe landing with loud cheers.

Tribe Takes 2 From Brewers

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Dennis Eckersley just missed a no-hitter, and it didn't bother him a bit. "I wasn't frustrated at all by the hit," the Cleveland Indians righthander said. "I know I can't pitch any better than that."

The only hit in the first game of the two-night doubleheader was a first-inning triple by Milwaukee first baseman Cecil Cooper.

"He just reached out and hit a low and away slider down the right field line," Eckersley said.

Cleveland downed the Brewers twice Friday, 2-0 and 5-4. The first-game heroics by Eckersley were planned that way by Indians Manager Jeff Torborg.

In the nightcap, Rico Carty's pinch-hit ninth-inning double drove in the winning run. Carty credited it to an accident.

After Milwaukee reliever Bill Castro fired the first two pitches past Carty for strikes, fireworks that are normally used for a Cleveland home run or a victory went off accidentally.

The veteran designated hitter fouled off one pitch, then hit the next one deep to right-center, scoring Bill Melton from second with the tie-breaking and winning run.

In other AL games Friday, New York swept a doubleheader from California, 10-1 and 9-3; Kansas City nipped Toronto 9-8, Baltimore downed Oakland 6-1, Boston defeated Seattle 7-2, Minnesota outlasted Detroit 12-11 and Texas downed Chicago 10-7.

Orioles 6, A's 1
Jim Palmer hurled a two-hitter and rookie Kiko Garcia's two-run single capped Baltimore's four-run sixth-inning rally as the Orioles defeated Oakland. It was the A's 14th consecutive loss.

Palmer pitched his first complete game in seven starts, extending Baltimore's winning streak to five straight. He allowed a single by Manny Sanguillen in the first and a double in the second by Sheldon Mallory. After that, the only three Oakland baserunners reached on walks.

Yankees 10-9, Angels 1-3
Reggie Jackson doubled and tripled, driving home three runs in the opener, then smashed two tremendous home runs in the nightcap to lead New York to a doubleheader sweep over California. Jackson, who doubled home the eventual winning run in the fourth inning of the opener, has driven in 17 runs in his last 12 games. His first homer in the second game snapped a 3-3 tie.

Twins 12, Tigers 11
Rod Carew's fourth career grand slam home run and Mike Cubbage's two-run homer and run-scoring single fueled Minnesota's attack, but the Twins had to hold on to edge Detroit.

Minnesota scored seven runs in the second inning and five more in the third to take a 12-3 lead. But Detroit, with home runs by Steve Kemp, Tito Fuentes, Rusty Staub and Jason Thompson, battled back with two runs

L.A., Sutton Lose To Atlanta, 5-2

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Don Sutton's post-All Star Game coma continues and it is becoming a cause for concern in the camp of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Sutton, ace of the Dodger pitching staff, has made five starts for LA since being named the most valuable player in the All Star Game last month. He's lost three and was knocked out and not involved in the decisions in the other two.

The latest setback was a 5-2 stunner against Atlanta Friday night in which Sutton took a 2-1 lead into the ninth inning only to be beaten by Rod Gilbreath's grand slam home run.

Elsewhere in the National League Friday, St. Louis edged Montreal 2-1, Pittsburgh swept a doubleheader from New York 3-2 and 6-5, the second game going 12 innings, San Diego topped Houston 5-4, San Francisco edged Cincinnati 4-3 and Philadelphia routed Chicago 10-3.

Pirates 3-6, Mets 2-5
Pitcher Jim Rooker drilled three hits, driving in two runs and scoring the third as Pittsburgh beat New York in the opener.

Then Duffy Dyer's 12th inning single scored Rennie Stennett with the winner in the nightcap. The sweep moved the Pirates into second place in the NL East, three games back of Philadelphia.

Dyer came into the game when starter Ed Ott was thrown out for a sixth inning fight with Met second baseman Felix Millan. After Ott had barreled into second base trying to break up a double play, Millan punched the runner in the face. Ott retaliated by body-slammng Millan to the ground, breaking the infielder's collarbone.

Phillies 10, Cubs 3
Tim McCarver slugged a pair of home runs and Steve Carlton won his 17th game of the season, tops in the majors, as red-hot Philadelphia won its ninth straight.

McCarver, who is Carlton's personal catcher, said it was only the second time in his career that he has had two homers in a game. "The other was back in 1966," he said. "Sure, I remember. Do you think I'm an idiot?"

Cardinals 2, Expos 1
Jerry Mumphrey doubled home pinch runner Rick Bosetti with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning as St. Louis shaded Montreal.

Walks to Ted Simmons and pinch hitter Mike Anderson set the stage for Mumphrey's winning hit.

Lou Brock helped build St. Louis' first run in the first inning with a single and the 887th stolen base of his career—five short of Ty Cobb's all-time record.

Giants 4, Reds 3
John Montefusco handcuffed Cincinnati on four hits through the first eight innings and then got relief help from Gary Lavelle and Randy Moffitt to nail down the victory.

Rookie catcher Gary Alexander had a triple and homer for San Francisco while Mike Lum homered for the Reds.

Padres 5, Astros 4
Dave Kingman's fielder's choice grounder in the ninth inning scored Dave Winfield with the deciding run as

Gene Littler Leads PGA Tournament

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Veteran Gene Littler, one of golf's quiet men at age 47, may like to dabble in antique cars, but that doesn't necessarily mean he can't show the youngsters in the 59th PGA Championship a new twist or two.

Littler, winner at Houston in May, has been off the tour for six weeks because of a bad back. In fact, he didn't play any golf for 4½ weeks until he started hitting again a week ago.

Nevertheless, the 1961 U.S. Open champion, drove his 1954 Bentley Continental—one of seven special cars he owns—the 500 miles from his home in La Jolla, Calif., to famed Pebble Beach, where he carded rounds of 67 and 69 for an eight-under-par total of 136 and a two-stroke lead going into today's third round.

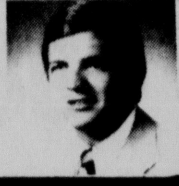

Littler led by two strokes over Jerry

McGee, a winner in Philadelphia two weeks ago, over the 6,806-yard, par 72 course which saw its first sunshine Friday after being encased in fog and mist most of the week.

Two more strokes back at 140 were Jack Nicklaus, seeking for his first victory in a major tournament this year but with five career victories at Pebble Beach, and Lenny Wadkins.

Tom Watson, five-time winner this year, including the Masters and British Open, and the top money winner on the tour with $274,178, was in a group of four tied at 141. The others were Charles Coody, Al Geiberger and Joe Inman Jr.

Among today's threesome pairings, to be shown on national television (ABC) beginning at 5:30 p.m. EDT, were Littler, Coody and Wadkins, and McGee, Nicklaus and Watson.

IT'S NO KITTEN — This catfish cannot be considered a little catch, as it weighs almost 30 pounds and measures 39½ inches long. It was caught Aug. 5 by Bernard (Bummy) Ross, 227 Town St., to the left, and John Fyffe, 210 Logan St. right, below Deercreek Dam. Although the type of bait used is a secret, Ross revealed that it was some type of dead fish.

Palmer pitched his first complete game in seven starts, extending Baltimore's winning streak to five straight. He allowed a single by Manny Sanguillen in the first and a double in the second by Sheldon Mallory. After that, the only three Oakland baserunners reached on walks.

Yankees 10-9, Angels 1-3
 Reggie Jackson doubled and tripled, driving home three runs in the opener, then smashed two tremendous home runs in the nightcap to lead New York to a doubleheader sweep over California. Jackson, who doubled home the eventual winning run in the fourth inning of the opener, has driven in 17 runs in his last 12 games. His first homer in the second game snapped a 3-3 tie.

Twins 12, Tigers 11
 Rod Carew's fourth career grand slam home run and Mike Cabbage's two-run homer and run-scoring single fueled Minnesota's attack, but the Twins had to hold on to edge Detroit.

Minnesota scored seven runs in the second inning and five more in the third to take a 12-3 lead. But Detroit, with home runs by Steve Kemp, Tito Fuentes, Rusty Staub and Jason Thompson, battled back with two runs

L.A., Sutton Lose To Atlanta, 5-2

By HAL BOCK
 AP Sports Writer

Don Sutton's post-All Star Game coma continues and it is becoming a cause for concern in the camp of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Sutton, ace of the Dodger pitching staff, has made five starts for LA since being named the most valuable player in the All Star Game last month. He's lost three and was knocked out and not involved in the decisions in the other two.

The latest setback was a 5-2 stunner against Atlanta Friday night in which Sutton took a 2-1 lead into the ninth inning only to be beaten by Rod Gilbreath's grand slam home run.

Elsewhere in the National League Friday, St. Louis edged Montreal 2-1, Pittsburgh swept a doubleheader from New York 3-2 and 6-5, the second game going 12 innings, San Diego topped Houston 5-4, San Francisco edged Cincinnati 4-3 and Philadelphia routed Chicago 10-3.

Pirates 3-6, Mets 2-5
 Pitcher Jim Rooker drilled three hits, driving in two runs and scoring the third as Pittsburgh beat New York in the opener.

Then Duffy Dyer's 12th inning single scored Rennie Stennett with the winner in the nightcap. The sweep moved the Pirates into second place in the NL East, three games back of Philadelphia.

Dyer came into the game when starter Ed Ott was thrown out for a sixth inning fight with Met second baseman Felix Millan. After Ott had barreled into second base trying to break up a double play, Millan punched the runner in the face. Ott retaliated by body-slammng Millan to the ground, breaking the infielder's collarbone.

Phillies 10, Cubs 3
 Tim McCarver slugged a pair of home runs and Steve Carlton won his 17th game of the season, tops in the majors, as red-hot Philadelphia won its ninth straight.

McCarver, who is Carlton's personal catcher, said it was only the second time in his career that he has had two homers in a game. "The other was back in 1966," he said. "Sure, I remember. Do you think I'm an idiot?"

Cardinals 2, Expos 1
 Jerry Mumphrey doubled home pinch runner Rick Bosetti with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning as St. Louis shaded Montreal.

Walks to Ted Simmons and pinch hitter Mike Anderson set the stage for Mumphrey's winning hit.

Lou Brock helped build St. Louis' first run in the first inning with a single and the 887th stolen base of his career—five short of Ty Cobb's all-time record.

Giants 4, Reds 3
 John Montefusco handcuffed Cincinnati on four hits through the first eight innings and then got relief help from Gary Lavelle and Randy Moffitt to nail down the victory.

Rookie catcher Gary Alexander had a triple and homer for San Francisco while Mike Lum homered for the Reds.

Padres 5, Astros 4
 Dave Kingman's fielder's choice grounder in the ninth inning scored Dave Winfield with the deciding run as

San Diego shaded Houston.

Winfield had walked and raced to third on George Hendrick's single before dashing home on Kingman's grounder to shortstop.

The Astros had tied the game in the top of the ninth on consecutive run-scoring doubles by Art Howe and Ed Herrmann against reliever Rollie Fingers.

Gene Littler Leads PGA Tournament

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Veteran Gene Littler, one of golf's quiet men at age 47, may like to dabble in antique cars, but that doesn't necessarily mean he can't show the youngsters in the 59th PGA Championship a new twist or two.

Littler, winner at Houston in May, has been off the tour for six weeks because of a bad back. In fact, he didn't play any golf for 4½ weeks until he started hitting again a week ago.

Nevertheless, the 1961 U.S. Open champion, drove his 1954 Bentley Continental—one of seven special cars he owns—the 500 miles from his home in La Jolla, Calif., to famed Pebble Beach, where he carded rounds of 67 and 69 for an eight-under-par total of 136 and a two-stroke lead going into today's third round.

Littler led by two strokes over Jerry

McGee, a winner in Philadelphia two weeks ago, over the 6,806-yard, par 72 course which saw its first sunshine Friday after being encased in fog and mist most of the week.

Two more strokes back at 140 were Jack Nicklaus, seeking for his first victory in a major tournament this year but with five career victories at Pebble Beach, and Lenny Wadkins.

Tom Watson, five-time winner this year, including the Masters and British Open, and the top money winner on the tour with $274,178, was in a group of four tied at 141. The others were Charles Coody, Al Geiberger and Joe Inman Jr.

Among today's threesome pairings, to be shown on national television (ABC) beginning at 5:30 p.m. EDT, were Littler, Coody and Wadkins, and McGee, Nicklaus and Watson.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): You can make unusual progress in many areas now. Get your mind clicking early, and in tune with present trends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Keep alert to job requirements, the opposition you will face, all likely contingencies. With such matters under control, you can move forward confidently and with ease.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Day calls for teamwork. You can make fine advances, assure eventual recognition, if you cooperate with all and stress your innate progressiveness.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine intellect, great dignity and a truly regal personality. In fact, your gift for handling finances should make you materially successful, no matter what career you choose. Fields in which you could shine: music, writing, the law, science, or statesmanship.

Space Telescope

WASHINGTON (AP) — A space telescope, which can see 100 times better than those presently in use and which may be able to solve some of the secrets of the universe, will be placed into orbit in the early 1980s, the National Geographic Society reports.

The large telescope, placed far above the earth's hazy and turbulent atmosphere with machinery to beam its images to earth, may be the instrument which shows conclusively whether life exists outside earth, some scientists think.

Dr. Harland J. Smith, an astronomer at the University of Texas, calls it the prince of instruments. "Very roughly, it will let us see a hundred times as much information in each element of sky as we can see now," he said.

The United Church of Canada, formed in 1925 by the union of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches, is the largest Protestant church body in Canada.

PLO Claims Israelis Repulsed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization — PLO — claimed its guerrillas repulsed three Israeli tank attacks across the southern Lebanese border early today.

A communique from the PLO high command accused the Israelis of mounting the daybreak assaults in an attempt to capture the guerrilla-held southern village of Yarine just north of the Israeli border.

"A three-hour barrage of heavy artillery and rockets preceded the tank thrusts, which were all beaten back. One enemy tank was seen ablaze," the communique said. It made no mention of any casualties.

There was no immediate confirmation of the PLO report from local Lebanese authorities or right-wing Christian forces.

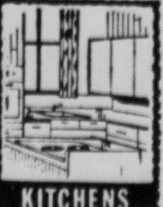

The Israeli government has never confirmed previous PLO allegations that its troops have engaged in combat across the Lebanese border. But earlier this week Prime Minister Menahem Begin said the Israelis had provided artillery support for Christian militias in clashes with Palestinian guerrillas.

The PLO communique also said heavy artillery duels flared today on the foothills of Mt. Hermon in southeastern Lebanon. The communique charged that Christian forces, backed by Israeli gunners, shelled guerrilla positions in three hamlets close to the Israeli frontier — Khiam, Ibel el Saki and Khirbi.

PLO Claims Israelis Repulsed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization — PLO — claimed its guerrillas repulsed three Israeli tank attacks across the southern Lebanese border early today.

A communique from the PLO high command accused the Israelis of mounting the daybreak assaults in an attempt to capture the guerrilla-held southern village of Yarine just north of the Israeli border.

"A three-hour barrage of heavy artillery and rockets preceded the tank thrusts, which were all beaten back. One enemy tank was seen ablaze," the communique said. It made no mention of any casualties.

There was no immediate confirmation of the PLO report from local Lebanese authorities or right-wing Christian forces.

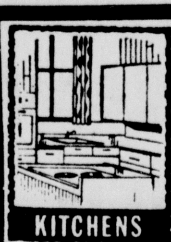

The Israeli government has never confirmed previous PLO allegations that its troops have engaged in combat across the Lebanese border. But earlier this week Prime Minister Menahem Begin said the Israelis had provided artillery support for Christian militias in clashes with Palestinian guerrillas.

The PLO communique also said heavy artillery duels flared today on the foothills of Mt. Hermon in southeastern Lebanon. The communique charged that Christian forces, backed by Israeli gunners, shelled guerrilla positions in three hamlets close to the Israeli frontier — Khiam, Ibel el Saki and Khirbi.

IRA Unleashes New Wave Of Violence As Queen Leaves

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Irish Republican Army (IRA) guerrillas have answered Queen Elizabeth II's Silver Jubilee plea for peace in strife-torn Northern Ireland with a new round of violence aimed at British soldiers here.

One British marine was killed and three other soldiers were injured Friday in an ambush in Belfast's turbulent Turf Lodge district, a stronghold of the outlawed IRA's radical Provisional Wing.

The attack appeared to be an IRA attempt to restore its credibility among Catholic supporters after failing to carry out a threatened "blitz to remember" during the Queen's Silver Jubilee visit to the rebellious province Thursday and Friday.

It also undermined British claims that troops and police are beating IRA guerrillas in their fight to end British rule in Northern Ireland and unite the Protestant-dominated province with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic, to the south. Ulster's Protestant majority opposes such a union.

During a tense visit to the University of Ulster at Coleraine Thursday, the Queen defied an IRA bomb threat and appealed to warring Catholic and Protestant militants to "forgive and forget."

"There is no place here for old fears and attitudes born of history, no place for blame for what has passed," she said in a speech.

The IRA considered the Queen's visit to Northern Ireland — her first in 11 years — a reinforcement of British sovereignty in the province. But it failed to unleash its much-heralded "blitz." About 32,000 British troops were on alert during the royal tour.

Street rioting and gun battles wracked Belfast throughout the Queen's visit but Elizabeth stayed out of the city for security reasons.

The 51-year-old monarch, celebrating the 25th anniversary of her reign, left Northern Ireland Thursday night aboard the royal yacht Britannia for a holiday cruise off Scotland.

Friday's violence erupted when a British patrol triggered a guerrilla bomb, injuring two soldiers. British troops poured into the Turf Lodge district and were met by guerrilla sniper fire that fatally wounded the marine and hit another trooper in the chest.

The whole state of Ohio may be in for another soaking tonight as a low pressure area approaches from the northwest, the National Weather Service says.

And early this morning, showers and thundershowers in Kentucky were spreading northward into southern Ohio as another front that passed through the state Friday began moving northward again.

Showers and thundershowers appeared quite likely for southern Ohio today, and there was a chance the showers would spread into central and northern Ohio.

Temperatures were expected to continue about the same with highs near 75 to 80 degrees and lows in the 60s.

Miller Urges Strike End

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller is heading for the coal fields to try to persuade some 66,500 wildcat strikers to heed his back-to-work orders.

If the miners continue to snub Miller, the union's executive board appears ready to deal harshly with the strikers, who are protesting cutbacks in union health benefits.

The national UMW contract and the union constitution permit suspension of officers, fines and expulsions for refusing the return-to-work directives. The board warned dissidents in a resolution Friday that they face such penalties.

Miller did not release details of his trip, but he's expected to visit West Virginia, where 50,000 angry miners have closed most of the state's mines. It was not clear whether Miller would visit other states.

Miller said in an interview that he planned to "clarify" the fund situation, and promised his members "factual statements about the position we're in now." He said he would purchase television time to make his point.

Father, Son In Slaying Case

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A father and son, each charged with murder in separate incidents, face hearings next month before the same Montgomery County Common Pleas judge. "I've never had such a situation before," said Montgomery County Common Pleas Court Judge George L. Gounaris, who has been assigned both cases.

Pretrial hearing is set Sept. 1 for the son, Joseph L. Deavors, 19, who was indicted last week in the slaying of Joseph DiPino of Connecticut. On Sept. 23, his father, Willie Deavors, 55, will appear before Gounaris for a hearing to determine whether he can stand trial for the 1970 killing of Curtis Hooks of Dayton.

Deavors was injured when bar patrons attacked him after the shooting. He has been in Lima State Hospital for most of the past seven years.

Kutler Murder Trial Delayed By Judge

CINCINNATI (AP) — Presiding Judge Harry Hanna said he understood the problems of the chief counsel in the murder case of Dr. Stuart Kutler as he dismissed the jury early Friday, for the second straight day.

"Let me assure you it is difficult to participate in any trial," the judge told the panel.

The judge made the decision to postpone proceedings until Monday in order to permit attorney Robert Hanna to further recover from the effects of a fainting episode Thursday.

Hanna collapsed on the floor of the courtroom moments before he was to begin the defense presentation. A doctor said the episode was brought on by "extreme fatigue".

The defense attorney was "not seriously disabled, but was not feeling his best today," the judge explained to the jury.

The judge said he had received telephoned assurances from Hanna that he would be able to proceed with the case Monday.

Kutler, 31, is charged with beating to death the 8-year-old son of his former lover. He faces a 15 year-to-life sentence if convicted.

"Hanna told me he double-checked with a doctor and was assured that he'll be alright, although he ought to have another day's rest," the presiding judge said.

The presiding judge admitted that Hanna's ailment initially had him studying the lawbooks to determine options if the chief defense attorney were not able to continue in the case.

Those options included continuance of the case or even the possibility of a mistrial, Hanna said.

"I realize that Hanna has been the No. 1 counsel and a key participant," the judge said in explaining his actions. "I decided to exercise my discretion and delay the proceedings for a day."

Judge Blocks Monday Execution

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Preparations had begun for the first execution in Indiana since 1961 when State Supreme Court Richard M. Givan granted an indefinite stay Friday for convicted murderer Charles R. Martin.

"We were prepared to carry out the order," said Corrections Commissioner Gordon Faulkner of the execution scheduled for early Monday. Officials at the Indiana State Prison had checked the electric chair and found it in working order.

It was the second brush with execution for Martin, 35, of Alexandria. In March last year, a stay was granted just one day before he was scheduled to die for the kidnaping, rape and murder of 19-year-old Kathy Wylie of Gaston.
